

Robots Around the World

J.H.

Overview

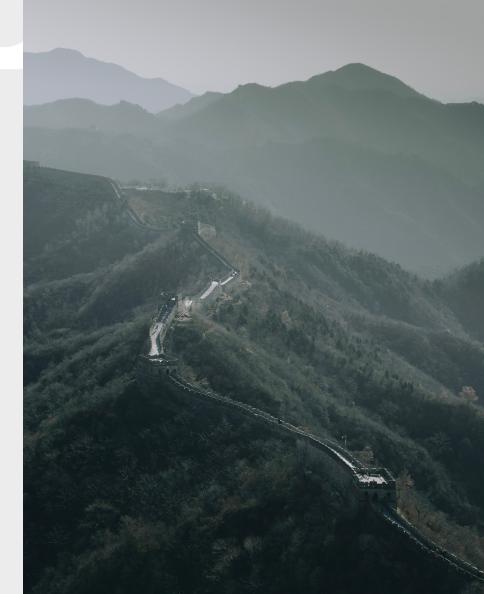

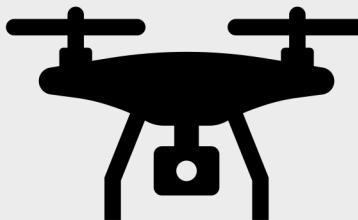

What is a robot?

- Robots are the combination of many different disciplines.
- They together to produce robots or machines that are used to copy or take over human actions.
- They are diverse in what they can do
 - Some can walk, some can fly, and some can swim

Builtin. (2020). Robotics. Retrieved from <https://builtin.com/robotics>

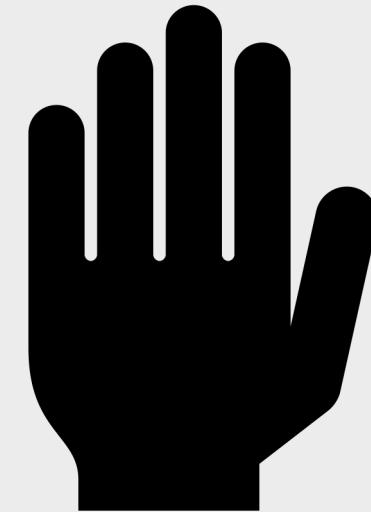

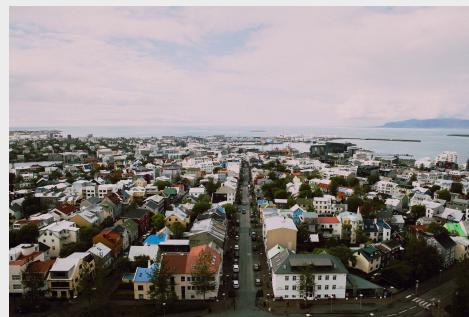

Mavic 2

- The Mavic 2 is a quadcopter drone that has many different applications in the real world.
 - Cinematic videos
 - Surveying dangerous terrain
 - Crowd surveillance
- Drone
- Developed in Shenzhen, China by a drone company name DJI.

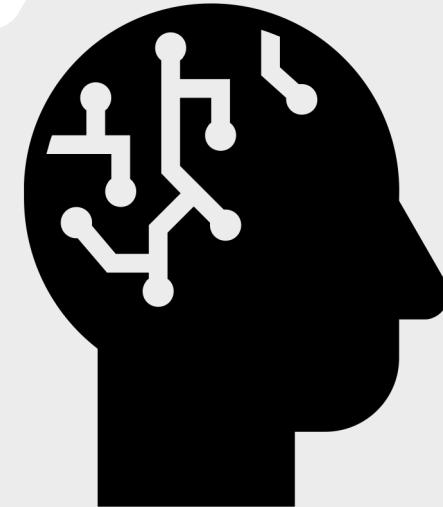

i-Limb

- This bionic hand prosthesis is designed for hand amputees.
 - Uses brain waves from the patient to control the hand.
 - Gives patients a second chance.
- Medical
- Developed in Iceland by the company OSSUR.

Stuntronic

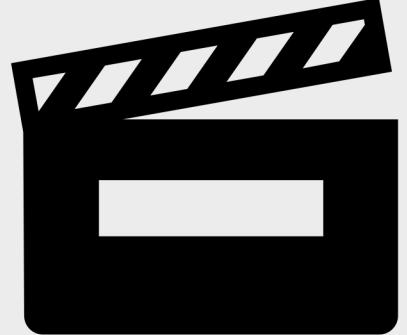

- Developed as a robot that mimics human motion.
 - Will perform stunts for acrobatic shows in the Disney Parks
 - Mimics the way humans move in acrobatic performances.
- Entertainment
- Developed by the Walt Disney Company in Los Angeles, California.

Summary

Robots like the three mentioned earlier are going to and have had a lasting impact on the world

Whether it is in the entertainment, medical, or consumer world robots are here to stay.

Reference List

Builtin. (2020). Robotics. Retrieved from <https://builtin.com/robotics>

Disney. (2020). Disney Research Studios. Retrieved from <https://studios.disneyresearch.com/category/robotics/>

DJI. (2020). DJI Mavic 2. Retrieved from
<https://www.dji.com/mavic-2>

IEEE. (2020). i-Limb.IEEE Robots. Retrieved from <https://robots.ieee.org/robots/ilimb/>

IEEE. (2020). Mavic 2. IEEE. Retrieved from <https://robots.ieee.org/robots/mavic/>

IEEE. (2020). Stuntronic.IEEE Robots. Retrieved from <https://robots.ieee.org/robots/stuntronics/>

Ossur. (2020). Ossur i-Limb. Retrieved from <https://www.ossur.com/en-us/prosthetics/arms/i-limbquantum>